

Forum European Union - Latin America and the Caribbean

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and multi-sectoral alliances:
Contributions to competitiveness, innovation and sustainable development
- 28 and 29 October 2009, Buenos Aires, Argentina -

Working Table II "Debate on the applicability of integral systems and standards of responsible management "

Emily Sims, Senior Specialist, Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy, International Labour Organization (ILO), Geneva

Juris Doctor, Yale Law School; MSc. Economics, London School of Economics and Political Science; B.A., Duke University, Anthropology and Gender Studies Senior Specialist, ILO Programme on Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy International Labour Organization. Emily began her career in the ILO in 1994 in the Standards Department, where she was responsible for evaluating governments' compliance with ratified conventions concerning employment creation and human resources development; and for research on the link between international labour standards and economic growth in developing countries.

In 2002, Emily moved to the Enterprise Department to do research on the link between international labour standards and productivity and competitiveness. Her research now focuses on the potential synergies between public regulation of the workplace and company and industry social responsibility initiatives; and on how financial markets are using international labour standards in their investment decisions. She is the author of numerous articles and two books: Corporate Success through People and Labour-Management Cooperation in SMEs: Forms and Factors.

Emily currently is responsible for managing the ILO Helpdesk to assist companies' and workers' to give effect to the principles contained in the ILO MNE Declaration and international labour standards more generally.

Doctorado en Derecho, Escuela de Derecho de Yale. Especialista principal: "Programa de Empresas Multinacionales y Políticas sociales de la Organización Internacional del Trabajo". Su investigación se enfoca en las sinergias potenciales entre la regulación pública de los puestos de trabajo y las iniciativas industriales de responsabilidad social. Autora de numerosos artículos y de dos libros: Corporate Success through People y Labour-Management Cooperation in SMEs: Forms and Factors. Actualmente, responsable de la gestión del Centro de Asistencia de la OIT, para asistir a empresas y trabajadores en la aplicación de los principios contenidos en la Declaración Tripartita de Principios sobre las Empresas Multinacionales, y los estándares internacionales de trabajo de manera más general.